

Vera Sprunt was born in Wilmington, North Carolina. She received a Bachelor of Art at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and a Master of Art and Master of Fine Art with distinction at the University of New Mexico, Albuquerque, New Mexico.

Her art works have been exhibited widely for over thirty six years in such venues as the Albuquerque Museum of Art and History; the Center for Contemporary Arts of Santa Fe, New Mexico; the Louise Wells Cameron Art Museum in Wilmington, North Carolina; Viridian Artists Gallery in NYC; Artemisia Gallery in Chicago, Illinois; Gebert Contemporary in Santa Fe, New Mexico and Scottsdale, Arizona; Erector Square Gallery in New Haven, Connecticut; the Museum of Fine Arts in Santa Fe, New Mexico; Forre & Company Fine Art in Aspen, Colorado; Leclerc Contemporary in Norwalk, Connecticut; the Fredericksburg Center for the Creative Arts in Fredericksburg, Virginia; Gebert Gallery in Venice, California; the Academy Art Center Gallery in Honolulu, Hawaii; the Fosdick-Nelson Gallery at Alfred University, New York; the Jonson Gallery of the University of New Mexico Art Museum; the University of New Mexico Art Museum, the Indianapolis Art Center in Indianapolis, Indiana, the Rhode Island Center for Photographic Arts in Providence, Rhode Island, Five Points Annex Gallery in Torrington, Connecticut and Kahilu Exhibits, Kahilu Theatre in Kamuela, Hawaii.

Vera Sprunt's works have been published in various books such as Printmaking in New Mexico 1880 – 1990 by Clinton Adams and Albuquerque Museum Art Collection, Common Ground, by Josie Lopez, Lacey Chrisco and Andrew Connors. Sprunt's works are held in private and public collections such as the Hawaii State Foundation on Culture and the Arts, Honolulu, Hawaii; the IMA Indianapolis Museum of Art Collection, Prints; the Polaroid International Collection, Polaroid Corporation, NYC; the University of New Mexico Art Museum Permanent Collection; the City of Albuquerque Public Art Collection, Central New Mexico Community College, Albuquerque, New Mexico and the Albuquerque Museum Art Collection.

Vera Sprunt currently lives and works in Sandia Park, New Mexico.

A complete CV is available upon request.